Importing, stocking, and supplying marijuana seeds is free from regulation under the 1961 United Nations Single Convention on narcotic drugs and affiliated international treaties. The trade of marijuana seeds in the Netherlands is incorporated in the national Opium or Narcotics Act legislation. This may also apply to some other countries. In some countries, marijuana seed trading does not require a permit. Nevertheless, when marijuana seeds are imported or exported for industrial, medical, or agricultural purposes, a notification requirement might still be obligatory. Be sure to inform MJSeedBank.co and/or authorities if a notification requirement is necessary. Several countries prohibit the use and growing of marijuana but in some cases, exemptions are available for industrial, medical, and/or agricultural purposes.

Regulations differ from country to country. Therefore, we strongly advise visitors and customers of MJSeedBank.co to inquire into international, federal, state, and/or local laws to which they are subject. Visitors and customers of MJSeedBank.co are solely responsible for their own actions. MJSeedBank.co will therefore accept no responsibility in this respect and does not accept any product liability. MJSeedBank.co does not interfere with the legislation of any country and only ships marijuana seeds on the condition that they are solely used according to international, federal, state, and/or local law. MJSeedBank.co does not cooperate in any acts by others that are in conflict with the law.
